Dear Dr. Rajesh,
Greetings from Thammasat University, Thailand

Firstly, I would like to congratulate you and your team for this great Initiative. RS and GIS are one of the most talked about emerging technologies that the youngsters should be exposed to before they enter the industry as engineers. This will also help them to explore research and further studies in technology application in the areas of agriculture, environment, sustainable development and much more as entrepreneurs and in the public and private sectors of India.

There are many pilot projects utilizing RS and GIS in India and globally, incorporating those cases along with challenges and limitations of technology would benefit the students in better understanding the application of these technologies.

The course structure overall looks succinct and impressive.

I wish you and your team the very best and look forward to some interesting collaborations in the future.

Best regards
Shweta Sinha

Dear Dr. Rajesh,

Thanks for sharing the course. The course is sufficient to introduce the fundamentals of Remote Sensing to E&TC students.

Space technology is becoming more important as the privatization of space increases. India is one of the few countries in the world which has its own satellite launching program. With the capability to monitor earth and its surroundings from space, remote sensing has become a key tool to solve today's issues like predicting adverse weather conditions, climate change and forest cover.

This course would provide them the essential knowledge about remote sensing and its applications. In addition, this course will help them prepare for jobs in the public and private space sector.

We are glad to inform you that we are co-creating, drafting a new syllabus for a course titled "Remote Sensing" for the next academic year i.e., AY2022-23.

This course will be offered to Final Year (B.E II Sem) Under Graduate (UG) students of Electronics and Telecommunication (E&TC) Department across Savitribai Phule Pune University (SPPU) affiliated colleges in the state of Maharashtra, India.

This course is an elective subject to introduce the underlying principles, concepts and foundation of satellite based Remote Sensing.

As an industry and academic subject matter expert we would request you to give your valuable insights, recommendations and suggestions on the draft syllabus of coursework for improving the quality of the contents so that students will be benefited by opting this course.

This new course will not only give exposure to the Remote Sensing, Geographic Information System and Global Navigation Satellite System technologies available in the market but also will motivate students taking up higher education and research studies in the domain of Geoinformatics.

Please find attached draft of the new syllabus for your kind reference. Please let us know for any further information required from our end in this regard. Looking forward to your earliest response in this regard.

Thank you very much for your continuous support and encouragement in all our endeavours.

Dear Dr. Rajesh,

Thank you so much for your email and congratulations for co-creating, drafting a new syllabus for a course titled "Remote Sensing" for the next academic year i.e., AY2022-23.

Observations on newly drafted syllabus of "Remote Sensing":

The syllabus is well prepared and contains major topics in satellite remote sensing (Beginner to Intermediate level).

Detailed Comments:

- Unit II: It is good to introduce other major satellites along with the Indian satellites, which are sources of the global datasets. The objective can be modified accordingly.
- Unit III: Differences between Multispectral and Hyperspectral remote sensing - This topic can be included in Unit II, where it should be more suitable.
- Unit III: The topics include Data Processing as well, hence the title of the unit can be changed to 'Satellite Data Products and Processing'.
- Unit III: It's good to introduce Image Enhancement in this unit before classification. Topics on Satellite Indices can be also included.
- Unit IV: As LiDAR uses visible and Infrared wavelengths, and this topic is under 'Microwave Remote Sensing', I suggest to change the title of the UNIT IV as 'Microwave Remote Sensing and LiDAR' or simply change to 'Active Remote Sensing'.
- Unit VI: Remote sensing data sources are not fit to the 'Applications of Remote Sensing' and can be moved to unit III.
- A few formatting errors persist, kindly handle them.

I hope this helps to improve the content of the syllabus, please feel free to contact me for any further explanation if necessary.

Good luck and best regards,

Dear Dr. Rajesh,

Greetings from Osaka.

Glad to know about RS/GIS courses being introduced as elective subjects in undergraduate program in Electronics and Telecommunication.

The syllabus is well planned and drafted. I do not see any mention of basics of Image Processing of satellite images. This is indispensable for RS course, I think. I guess that the students will have lectures in signal processing etc. and could benefit by learning about applying image processing and algorithms to RS images.

I would suggest to add few hours for Image Processing and maybe the sentence below in the present syllabus can be changed

From:

"To know the different types of satellite data products and understand visual interpretation"

To:

"To know the different types of satellite data products, visual interpretation and basics of digital processing of satellite images"

Also change

From:

"Unit III Satellite Data Products

To:

"Unit III Satellite Data Processing and Products"

There are some inconsistencies in fonts and capitalization of words. Please recheck.

Best
